The counterpart of the ear-boring mangala for a girl was the mangala performed when she attained puberty. This was called 'polé kaṇḍa mangala' or 'mangala performed on the sighting of defilement'. The menstrual flow was regarded as defiling, and formerly a woman observed seclusion for three days during her periods. Mangala was also performed when a woman became pregnant for the first time (kuḷiyammé mangala). A woman who had given birth to ten children, all of whom were alive, was entitled to a form of mangala known as paitāṇḍek aḷapa.

A man who killed a panther or tiger had the right to nari mangala or 'tiger mangala' being performed in his honour. Marriage increased a man's status, and a bachelor was regarded as socially and ritually inferior to a married man. Mangala was performed to a bachelor's corpse before burying or cremating it, presumably in order to raise the status of the soul of the dead bachelor.

A man who had lost two wives in succession was ritually married to a plantain tree before marrying his third wife. The marriage to the plantain tree was called 'bāḷek mangala', or 'plantain mangala', and the tree was cut down soon after the mangala.

The number three, in certain contexts, is considered very unlucky everywhere in south India. When a man has lost his first two wives in succession, and intends marrying again, the third wife is considered certain to share the fate of the first two. The performance of 'bāḷek mangala' and the cutting down of the tree soon after frees the human wife from the fate which would have otherwise overtaken her.

Formerly when a man built a new house he performed 'mané mangala' or 'house mangala'. Mangala was performed for the head of the house on this occasion. Another form of mangala which has entirely disappeared now is 'ettu mangala' or 'ox mangala'.

The ideal and usual marriage in Coorg is for a virgin to marry a bachelor and this is called 'kanni mangala' or 'virgin mangala'. The marriage rites are fullest when a virgin marries a bachelor, and they are abbreviated to some extent when a widower marries a virgin. They are still further abbreviated when a widow marries a widower, and many old Coorgs would even refuse to accord to such a marriage the name of mangala.

The ritual that is performed at the 'marriage of a virgin' may be divided into two parts, one which might be called the mangala part, and the other the non-mangala part. The mangala-part of marriage professed patronage of the Brahmans and that they gradually dropped into brahmanical habits of life and thought. A good many now wear the holy thread, and all profess to abstain from meat and fermented liquors. The return to Brahman initiation and dress was brought about by a Haviga Brahman whose family exercised spiritual influence over the Amma Kodagas. They are still unlettered. There is a tradition current among them that in former times one half of Coorg belonged to the Ammas, and the rest to the Coorgs. The Ammas by virtue of their priesthood held their land free of rent. Their lands are even now very lightly taxed.

Internal Structure

The Amma Coorgs form a homogeneous community. There are two gotras among them, the Baradwaja gotra and Viswamitra gotra. They marry within the same gotra.

Marriage Customs and Ceremonies

The Amma Coorgs do not intermarry with the Coorgs, but the separation may be of recent origin. Marriage settlement is made only after the agreement of horoscopes. The young man's father, uncle, and other close relations assemble, when coconuts, plantains, and betel leaves are handed to the bride in token of settlement. The auspicious day for celebration is fixed to send invitations to the relatives on both sides. The dress and ornaments to be given to the bride are also settled. The preliminary formalities that are gone through are :—

1. The boy's party going to the house of the bride.
2. Their welcome with refreshments.
3. Nischithambulam.

The essential formalities are mukadarsana, and garlanding and panigrahana, tali-tying, presenting the bride with the wedding dress and ornaments, and feasting. There is no homam as among the Coorgs, but there exists the cutting of plantains in common with the Coorgs. On the arrival of the bride at the bridegroom's house, she puts rice on the lamp. On the third day they bathe, and celebrate the sobhanaprasta, if the girl has attained puberty already.

Pregnancy and Childbirth

When a girl becomes pregnant, pumsavana and simantha are performed. When she is about to become a mother, she is confined to a separate room. Her mother or some aged woman acts as midwife. Pollution lasts for eleven days after which she bathes to become pure. But it is only after 40 days that ganga puja is performed, when she bathes and becomes pure. Only then can she enter the kitchen. Cradling the baby takes place on the eleventh day. The naming ceremony takes place the same day.
